GENERAL SHERMAN'S FAREWELL

Correspondence Between Him and Lincoln Relative to His Retirement

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—Correspondence incident to the retirement of General Sherman is published to-day. The general, in addressing the secretary of war, shows that while his legal term of service does not expire till February 8, 1884, but that the season of the year is not suited to the changes necessary on his retirement. He then says: "I have anticipated my retirement by some months to enable the president to make these changes at a more convenient season of the year, and also to enable my successor to be in office before the assembling of the next congress. I therefore request the authority to turn over the command of the army to Lieutenant-General Sheridan the 1st of November, 1883, and that I be ordered to my home at St. Louis there to wait till my legal retirement, and inasmuch as I will have, for a long time much correspondence, also both war and unofficial, I also ask the favor to have with me for a time two aid-de-camps—Colonel John E. Tourtelotte and John M. Bacon. The others of my personal staff, viz., Colonel M. Poe and J. C. Tidball, have already been assigned appropriate duties in their own branches in the military service. All should retain their rank and pay as aid-de-camps until February, 1884. On or before November 1st I can complete all official reports, and I believe I can surrender to my successor in good shape and condition. I am grateful that my physical and mental strength remains unimpaired by years, and am thankful for the liberal provision made by congress for my declining years, which will enable me to respond promptly to any call the president may make for my military service or judgment as long as I live."

Secretary Lincoln replies to the effect that the president has acceded to all requests made in the general's letter, and concludes as follows: "The president directs me to express to you his earnest hope that there may yet be given you many years of health and happiness in which to enjoy the gratitude of your fellow citizens, well earned by your distinguished public services."

SHERIDAN ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—Lieutenant General Sheridan, accompanied by his aid-de-camps, arrived in Washington this morning from Chicago. General Sheridan and party visited the war department about noon and paid their respects to Secretary Lincoln, General Sherman and Adjutant General Drum. The transfer of command of the army from General Sherman to Lieutenant General Sheridan will be made to-morrow.

A "BEAR" STORY.

The Northern Pacific to Economize Orders Lights away from the Switches

CHICAGO, Oct 31.—Times' New York special: Among the various measures of economy adopted by the Northern Pacific Railroad Company since the assault of the bears upon its stock was an order, said to have been promulgated, removing the lights from the switches of the company and making the safety of the public dependent entirely on the efficiency of switchmen. A dispatch from Hawley, Minn., reports that an accident last Friday night which was alleged to be a direct result of this policy was the fourth on the list since the order was promulgated. A passenger, who was on the train, gives the following additional particulars: The light had been removed from the switch, located about eighty rods east of the station, and a man named Roach, who had charge, had forgotten to change it after the west bound train went by. The engineer of the 9:45 east-bound passenger train, containing about 400 persons, saw the switch open by the light of the headlight and only twenty-five feet away. Although under considerable headway he managed to stop the train by reversing the engine and putting on the air brakes before he jumped off. The engine went into the bank of a cut, turning on its side, and the whistle bar striking the bank, she gave her own death note as she went over. The engineer laid the fault at the door of the company for taking off the light. If he had not noticed the switch the entire train would have been wrecked and great loss of life would have followed. Several residents on the line of the road state that the company had cut down the wages of the employes to such figures that it could secure few competent men, and as a result the road was very poorly manned.

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—The war department has issued a special order appointing a court of inquiry to investigate the cause of the failure of the Greely relief expedition and report whether the conduct of any officer of the army in the premises calls for further proceedings before a general court martial, and the reasons for the conclusions they may reach. The detail for the court are Brigadier General S. V. Benet, chief of ordnance; Colonel R. B. Ayres, second artillery; Lieutenant Colonel O. M. Poe, corps of engineers, and Major Henry Goodfellow, judge advocate of the United States, will act as recorder. The court will meet in Washington the 8th of November. It is understood the navy department will not take any further action in the case of Commander Frank Wildes, commanding the Yantic, for the part taken by him in the late expedition unless it shall be deemed expedient as a result of testimony which may be developed in the proceedings of the court of inquiry appointed by the secretary of war.

Mail by the Northern Pacific

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—The general superintendent of the railway mail service has issued the following order: All lines east of the Mississippi river will send mail for Oregon, Washington territory, Alaska and British Columbia via St. Paul and the Northern Pacific railway. Division superintendents will issue special instructions to lines west of the Mississippi river and east of the Rocky mountains so that mail will go via the Union Pacific or Northern Pacific railways, selecting the line that makes the best time. Lines in Oregon and Washington territory will send mail for points east of the Mississippi river via the Northern Pacific railway and St. Paul. The superintendent of the eighth division of the railway mail service will issue instructions to divert at Blackfoot Junction mail for lines west of the Mississippi river and east of the Rocky mountains that will make better time via the Utah Northern division of the Union Pacific railway.

Indian Courts not Courts of Record.

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—The secretary of the interior has sustained the commissioner of Indian affairs in a decision to the effect that the department does not recognize courts in Indian territory as courts of record within the meaning of section 2103, revised statutes, which requires that certain agreements made with Indians shall be executed before a judge of a court of record. The secretary holds that it was not the intention of the law makers that agreements should be executed before judges having such a limited knowledge of the laws and treaties affecting the rights of Indians, and such limited general information as judges of Indian courts within an Indian country usually possess.

Gresham will be Sustained

WASHINGTON, Oct 31.—The Republican this morning says: It is stated by authority that the president has decided to sustain the action of Postmaster General Gresham in the New Orleans National bank case. The decision of the president is in answer to a petition of a large number of merchants, bankers and others of New Orleans who protested against the recent decree of the post office department in the lottery case which decided that so long as the national bank in question acted as agent for the lottery company, just so long should its mail be regarded and treated as that of the lottery company which it represented.

It is estimated at the treasury department that the statement of the public debt to-morrow will show a reduction the past month of about ten and a half million dollars.

THE PRINCE OF WALES CLOSES THE FISHERIES EXHIBITION

LONDON, Oct 31.—There was an immense attendance to-day to witness the ceremony of closing the international fisheries exhibition. Replying to an address and the report showing the complete success of the exhibition, the Prince of Wales stated that the queen had followed the success of the exhibition with great interest and had requested him to express her hope that it would be of lasting benefit to the fishing population of the kingdom. He said that after all the expenses are paid a substantial surplus would remain which should be devoted to improving the welfare of the fishermen of the country and the promotion of an interest in fisheries in order that calamities incident to a fisherman's life might be alleviated. The prince [illegible] being able to continue the work of his father in giving opportunities for the peaceful emulation of all nations and thus diverting men's minds from international rivalries, by which all suffer, to those by which all gain. The vast attendance at this exhibition led him to hope that the buildings might remain and be employed for the use of other exhibitions. He desired to see here a hygienic exhibition in 1884, one of the progress of inventions in 1885, and he proposed holding here a colonial exhibition in 1886.

THE LIVERPOOL COTTON FAILURES

LONDON, Oct 31.—A Liverpool dispatch says: "Morris Ranger's failure will probably bring down a dozen or more Liverpool firms." This is probably exaggerated. It is said New York will be affected to the extent of £100,000. In the meantime the cotton business is entirely suspended, merchants and brokers awaiting developments.

The Times says R. H. Forman & Co.'s liabilities are estimated at £30,000. It is understood that Morris Ranger's liabilities in Liverpool are tolerably well divided among the cotton brokers. It is hoped generally that he will be able to meet his engagements. Ranger's failure is attributed to the American system of dealing in futures without the American system of protection secured to deposit margins. It is generally hoped that the latter system will be introduced in England.

LIVERPOOL, Oct 31.—The suspension of Miller & Fenton, cotton brokers, was announced this morning.

1 o'clock.—Henry Pearce & Co. and Joseph Taylor & Co., cotton brokerage firms, have suspended.

LONDON, Oct 31—Noon.—The cotton failures at Liverpool have depressed the stock market here.

TWO VESSELS SUNK AND FIFTEEN LIVES LOST

LONDON, Oct 31.—A rumor is current in circulation to the effect that the steamer Holyhead has sunk. The Holyhead left Dublin last night for Holyhead with a cargo of horses and pigs. Sixteen persons besides the crew on board are all reported lost.

DUBLIN, Oct 31.—The pilot of a cutter just arrived reports the sinking of steamer Holyhead. He says the steamer sank [illegible] in mid channel. There were six passengers on board, including a number of cattle drovers.

LONDON, Oct 31.—The steamer Holyhead came in collision with the German steamer Alhambra, bound from Liverpool to New York, when twelve miles off Holyhead. Both vessels sank. Thirteen of the Alhambra's crew and two of the Holyhead's were drowned. The remainder were picked up and landed at Holyhead. Much relief was felt in Dublin when the safety of the Holyhead passengers was learned.

Those drowned from the Alhambra include the captain, mate and chaplain's daughter; twelve were saved.

The collision occurred at 11 o'clock Tuesday night. The night was mild and fairly clear. By some means the Alhambra got across the track of the Holyhead and a frightful collision occurred. The Holyhead's engines were reversed when it was found that a collision was inevitable. The Alhambra was cut down to the water's edge. The captain of the Holyhead had lines thrown over the bows and lowered two boats. There was not the slightest panic on board the boat. He saved twelve of the Alhambra's crew. One man clambered over the bows. When it was discovered that the Holyhead was fast sinking more boats were lowered and the passengers and crew safely embarked, except the quartermaster and a boy, who were in the forecastle. In a few minutes the Holyhead disappeared and the boats pulled for Holyhead. At 3 o'clock in the morning the wind freshened and the sea increased and the boats were kept afloat with great difficulty. At 8 o'clock a steamer hove in sight and bore down and took all on board. The survivors were in much distress.

FRANCE

THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR CONFERENCE

PARIS, Oct 31.—In the international labor conference great diversity of opinion prevails among the delegates. The subject of international legislation was resumed, but the discussion degenerated into generalities. French delegates urge state intervention. Workingmen, it was said, ought to form a political party, and if necessary resort to force. The admission of foreign working men to the French syndical chamber was demanded. Henry Broadhurst, honorary president of the conference, demanded complete liberty of action and the suppression of coercive solicitations. He argued that complete harmony existed in England between the working and middle classes. He advocated legislation only for the protection of women and children and repudiated violence. Broadhurst added that two English cabinet ministers supported trades unions and said he only regretted that France was not similarly situated.

In the evening an Englishman named Burnett addressed the meeting. He emphasized the friendly sentiments of the English workingmen toward the French and dwelt on the benefits of trades unions. He expected no immediate result from the present conference but thought it would lay the future base of international trades unions. Governments, he said, sought war, while the working people wished peace, union and progress. His speech was heartily applauded. Other delegates made speeches advocating a progressionist policy.

PARIS, Oct 31.—In the international labor conference this afternoon the English, Italian, Spanish and French deputies spoke. Henry Broadhurst, honorary president of the conference, advised workingmen to be patient. Large capitalists, he said, suffered greatly from competition. London had a hard fight against English provincials and Belgians, but more especially against Germans who swarmed there. The following resolutions were adopted: This convention records its opinion that the principal end to be pursued is to lessen the hours of labor and thus render supportable the position of workingmen of all nations. This is attainable in two ways, namely legislation for the protection of the weak against competition and organization of workingmen, who should be united and disciplined. It is the duty of workingmen to direct their efforts against unjust laws which render the organization of labor impossible, and hinder international legislation which is so necessary to a uniform rate the condition of the working classes. In the evening this speaker urged the French workingmen to devote more attention to business and less to politics and to organize trades unions.

THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

More of Challemel LaCour's Reply to Granet—Defending the Government.

PARIS, Oct 30.—Challemel LaCour, continuing his reply to Granet in the chamber of deputies, said China had never recognized the Bourée treaty and no understanding between France and China has been effected thereon. It was evident that China sought to expel the French from Tonquin. The Chinese at length decided to formulate propositions demanding the recognition of their sovereignty and the evacuation of places occupied by the French, but did not attempt to discuss the rights conferred on France by her treaties with Anam. They simply ignored those rights and declared Tonquin to be their property, and demanded that the French should retire, promising to concede to France a position similar to that which she now occupies in certain parts of China. France sent in reply what she considered a possible basis of an agreement. The cabinet, he said, still considered the Bourée treaty inadmissible, but the constitution of a neutral zone between Tonquin and China would not be a situation advantageous to France. [illegible] China demanded a reversion to the state of things which existed prior to the year [illegible]. France, he declared, must proceed firmly and rapidly with the work thus far advanced. The negotiations with China, he added, had been only interrupted. Let events speak for themselves. Perhaps the time will come when China will be happy to find itself ready to examine arrangements compatible with France's interest and honor. France never departed from firmness and moderation. The force of circumstances rendered her a representative of the interests of all Europe in the east.

After Challemel LaCour's address M. Perrin spoke. He reproached the government for not having fulfilled its promises, and characterized the Tonquin affair as a mere adventure. Frenchmen, he said, were not afraid of war with China, but the necessity therefore must first be shown. He thought it better to penetrate China by trade than by arms. Twenty thousand men were required in Tonquin, and it would be imprudent to spare so many Frenchmen in the present situation of affairs in Europe.

THE ATTACK RENEWED

PARIS, Oct 31.—In the chamber of deputies to-day Clemenceau, radical, resumed the debate upon the interpellation of the government on Tonquin policy. He said the opponents of the Tonquin expedition renounced opposition thereto after the death of Captain Riviere. He charged the government with publishing incomplete documents and severely criticised the government for stating in July last that the French force in Tonquin was sufficient to meet all exigencies, when the contrary is now admitted. He said at first the question was the establishment of a protectorate over Tonquin. Now it was the question of a protectorate over Annam. The French forces at Hue, he said, had been committed to operations without consultation by the government with the chambers.

Prime Minister Ferry declared he would reply.

PRIME MINISTER FERRY RESPONDS

Premier Ferry, in reply to Clemenceau, admitted that the interests of the cabinet were a secondary matter as compared with the interests of the country. The government, he declared, had not failed in their engagements. They had carried the practice of moderation and prudence to its farthest limits. There existed no grounds for separation between the Tonquin and Tunisian questions. The day was not far distant when French statesmen would cease to be violently condemned for increasing their country's dominions. The Tonquin question was not a personal affair. France, as the second maritime power of the world, had special duties to perform. It was the duty of the government to prepare fresh ground for the activity of future generations. All working nations were marking out for themselves a part of the unexplored regions of the world. Why should France not draw near to China, which contains 400,000,000 consumers? Regarding military matters in Tonquin the premier said operations had been continued within the limits indicated by the government and not even the Red river delta had been completely occupied.

TREATIES OLD AND NEW

The capture of Hue had been brought about by the death of King Tuduc. An outlook for opportunity presented itself and had to be seized. If the government had waited to summon the chambers a propitious moment would have been lost. The treaty of 1874 gave France the right to a protectorate over Annam and Tonquin. The treaty made no distinction between Annam and Tonquin. The treaty of Hue did not change the treaty of 1874, but defined the conditions of the protectorate. The government had assumed the responsibility for dispatching reinforcements to Tonquin because the [illegible] of the chambers before the usual [illegible] would have been [illegible] of much difficulties. In the negotiations with China the government had carried out the exercise of patience and moderation as far as possible. The Bourée treaty, [illegible] merely of the character of a [illegible] territory. M. Bourée had shown more goodwill than clear sightedness. [illegible] government [illegible] China [illegible]. There was only [illegible] between China and France.

CHINESE OFFICIALS [illegible]

Continuing, M. Ferry said: We have no [illegible] with China but we have an agent. We have just received a dispatch in which Marquis Tseng [illegible] that Li Hung Chang [illegible] disavows Marquis Tseng's [illegible]. Chinese affairs are not like those of Europe. China protests without breaking diplomatic relations. For example, she protested [illegible] for 400 years against the occupation of Macao by the Portuguese. China has never [illegible] anticipating events and only recognizes them when they are accomplished. She will be more conciliatory when we have captured Sontay and Bacninh. Chinese statesmen firmly [illegible] all connection with the Black Flags. The French government does not believe that China will declare war nor have we any intention of doing so. We are desirous of firmly establishing ourselves in the Red river delta by getting possession of Sontay and Bacninh. With that object achieved nobody will be able to drive us out with patience or sang froid and our forces shall be proof against everything. This prudent policy will lead to a settlement of Tonquin affairs. Our African empire, for long years a subject of constant [illegible], is to-day one of the glories of France. The means to avoid war is to show that we have no fear.

An order of the day expressing confidence in the firmness and prudence of the government was adopted, 339 to 160.

THE CANADIAN PACIFIC

The Road Runs Up Against the Rockies and Comes to a Halt

WINNIPEG, Oct 25.—Fears have been expressed that the Canadian Pacific would not be able to find a practical crossing over the Selkirk range of the Rockies through Kicking Horse pass. No effort nor expense to secure the shortest and best route across the mountains has been spared by the company, as it is well known that the company has been at enormous cost keeping engineers in the Rockies for two years making surveys and explorations with views of securing the best route. At this late hour, when the track has been laid far up the Bow river pass to within thirty five miles or so of the summit, it has been discovered that after all it [illegible] cross via Kicking Horse pass. Engineers are on the work in dispute. Some claim that it is impossible to go that way and avoid the crossing of the range by Howse's pass. In order to go via Howse's pass it will be necessary to deviate considerably and some seven or eight miles of track already laid will have to be lifted. The engineers could not come to any agreement so they were all called in and the matter was laid before the general manager and other officials. When it was seen there was but little prospect of an agreement among the engineers on one route, and serious consequences might result by further prosecuting work this season when it was not definitely known that pass was feasible, it was deemed best to stop all work for two years and orders were accordingly sent out to that effect. In the meantime the most efficient engineers will be put to work to ascertain the best route. Several hundred laborers came to this city last night. They state that all the workmen, between 4000 and 6000 in number, have been dismissed. Work on all sub-contracts, many of which were let quite recently, has also been stopped. Many workmen had been led to expect that they would be given work in the winter in consequence of the heavy work in the mountains. It is expected that two hundred will arrive daily until the entire number is brought here. The majority belong to the states and will proceed there. All will go to St. Paul first and many will remain there. The company furnished the men with passes from the mountains to Winnipeg. Arrangements have been made with the Manitoba road whereby the men will be forwarded to St. Paul at $5 each.

HANLAN THE OARSMAN COMING TO PORTLAND

The County Treasury at Virginia City Robbed—A Prize Fighter Nearly Killed in the Ring—San Francisco News

That Rumored Line of Steamships

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 31.—[Special.]—It is probable the railroad disagreement as to the question of fares has given rise to the rumors of a change in the attitude of the Central Pacific relative to the northwest trade, and among which is the report of a new line of steamers running between Portland and San Francisco in the interest of the above road. There is no disguising the fact that considerable feeling has been engendered by the position assumed by the Northern Pacific in relation to this market and to the trade of northern Oregon generally, while it is conceded on all sides that competition for California trade between the Northern and the Central Pacific would lead to a war attended by no profits to either road involved. Fred Crocker, in conversation with an OREGONIAN correspondent to-day, relative to the view the Central Pacific takes of the reputed aim of the Northern Pacific road to enter into competition for California business, stated that should it persist in coming into territory other than its own the Central would devise effective measures to check it and thereby protect itself. There was no disposition on its part to force its way into the north, and it did not propose to allow the Northern Pacific to enter its territory except as already stipulated. Should matters come to a crisis the putting on of steamers to Portland would be considered. The road was fully capable of protecting itself on ocean service, as in addition to colliers in process of construction and those here, the recent purchase of Morgan & Sons' line of iron steamers gave them strength in the event of a disagreement. Besides, they had already ordered three large size iron steamers which will run between New Orleans and New York so as to allow them to transfer some ships to this coast whenever they deem such a step expedient. Other rumors of much the same character have been circulated, none of which can be traced to any source.

Arrival of a Vessel Infected With Yellow Fever

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 31.—The Pacific mail steamer San Blas arrived this morning from Panama, brought three cases of yellow fever: John Murphy, [illegible] passenger from New York; Francisco Perez, from Acapulco, and the steamer's cook. The two last are reported dying. Murphy is recovering. The vessel failed to fly a yellow flag and the surgeon was ignorant that the sickness was yellow fever. On the way up the steamer stopped at Acapulco, Mazatlan and San Blas. No communication was held with the latter place. The fever is still raging there. At Mazatlan she took thirty passengers and got a clean bill of health. The first case was developed after leaving Acapulco. The well passengers were transferred to the steamer China and the sick ones to the fever floating hospital.

WASHINGTON CITY LETTER.

Matters Relating to the Customs and Postal Service in Oregon and Washington

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Oct 22.

The president and the members of his cabinet are busily engaged in the preparation of their annual reports to be submitted to congress. As yet the main work has been to gather the data from which the message and departmental documents are prepared. Of course the contents of these papers at best are problematical, but the intentions of the secretary of the treasury in some things are known. One of them is of importance locally to Oregon, and your correspondent intends to give the readers of THE OREGONIAN the programme. I refer to the suggested consolidation of customs districts.

This consolidation is a pet scheme with treasury officials. Secretary Folger, in speaking of this reform some days since, says: Some of the customs officers are now compensated by salaries, commissions and fees, some by commissions and fees only, and others by fixed salary. In some cases the compensation is wholly insufficient to secure the constant services of competent officers, and in others the amount of emoluments are excessive, considering the nature of the services performed.

There are many districts in which no duties have been collected for years, and there are others in which the duties collected are not sufficient to pay the cost of collection. The labors of the officers in these districts are confined almost entirely to issuing documents to vessels, collecting hospital tax and fees and making up monthly and quarterly returns, often of no transactions, to the department.

The issuing of papers to vessels and the collection of hospital dues might as well be done by subordinates and the unproductive districts abolished, thus saving expense and promoting the efficiency of the service.

Upon a careful consideration of the subject I am convinced that the districts should be consolidated and the number thereof reduced.

This is the position assumed by Secretary Folger, and it remains to be seen how it will affect the Oregon districts should his recommendations be approved by congress.

There are now four customs districts in Oregon, but should the consolidation go into effect there would be but two—Portland and Astoria. The abolished districts would be Coos bay and Yaquina. The four districts in the past have cost $18,350, but consolidated the service would be managed for [illegible]. This does not look like economy, but the secretary claims that to keep up the four districts in an efficient manner requires the expenditure of [illegible]. The consolidated plan provides for twenty employes at Portland with combined salaries of [illegible] and for seven at Astoria with compensation of [illegible].

Under the secretary's plan the office of appraiser would be abolished and so would be one of the deputy collectors.

Under the consolidation there would be twenty customs officers at Port Townsend with salaries aggregating [illegible].

During the week only one patent was issued to a citizen of Oregon. It was to William P. Tigg, East Portland. Francis M. Speed of Walla Walla secures a patent for laying underground telegraph wires.

The following postal changes have been made in the service in Oregon:

Postmaster commissioned: Horace J. [illegible].

Railroad postoffices changes: Portland and Riddles R. P. O. clerks extend run to end at Julia. Increase in distance 30.30 miles, making the distance 263.32 miles; the line to be known as the Portland and Julia R. P. O.

Star service changes: Sparta to Salina, leave Sparta Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 6 A. M., arrive at Salina next days by 10 P. M.; leave Salina Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 6 A. M., arrive at Sparta next day by 10 P. M.

The postmaster general has commissioned John I. Johnson postmaster at Ritzville, Washington territory, and has approved the bonds of the following postmasters: Jacob Beasch, $1000, [illegible], Lewis county; James G. Hallenbeck, $2000, Puyallup, Pierce county, and Alfred Jones, $1000, Clifton, Mason county.

A DRAMATIC MURDER TRIAL

NASHVILLE, Oct 31.—The trial of James Briley for the murder of Robert P. Bates, committed in the arena of a circus October 22, which caused such a sensation at the time, progressed rapidly to-day. Mollie [illegible] Bates, a beautiful petite brunette, drew a plan of the circus surroundings in the court room on the floor and explained the position of slayer and slain. She acted in a highly dramatic manner the parts played by both participants in the tragedy. She said Briley came across the arena about 100 yards to where Bates was standing, holding a child in his arms. He drew a revolver and shot Bates in the back and then in the chest. The wounded man fell down with the child and then she clasped him in her arms about him in the center of the arena. [illegible] proved the same facts [illegible] the murderer said before he shot "Take this, you son of a b—h, you killed my brother ten years ago." Several witnesses testified to the panic caused by the shooting among the audience. Defense [illegible] opposed to examining any witnesses, and it is expected [illegible] of testimony but will rely upon the oratorical powers of able counsel engaged.

THE WORK OF FENIANS.

Terrific Explosions in the Tunnel of an Underground Railway.

A TRAIN BLOWN UP AND MANY INJURED.

Both Explosions Occur in the Suburbs of London—Intense Excitement—Undoubtedly the Work of Fenians.

LONDON, Oct 31.—At 8 o'clock last evening a terrific explosion occurred near the Praed street underground station of the Metropolitan railway. On the first alarm a strong cordon of police was summoned to preserve order and keep the way clear and convey the wounded people to hospitals. Passengers on the train at the scene of the explosion say there was a quick, loud report, like a cannon, then sudden darkness, the gas lights from the front to the rear of the train being extinguished. Glass was broken and splinters of wood flew about the cars, cutting and wounding many passengers. Above the din were heard the

SHRIEKS OF THE INJURED

And panic-stricken people. All this occurred in a moment and for a while confusion reigned supreme. The train, which was crowded, contained principally country visitors, returning from fisheries exhibition. After leaving the station the train traveled steadily ahead, although the concussion smashed nearly all the lamps in Praed-street station and caused much damage. When the train reached the first station of the Edgeware road, the first effort was made to rescue the wounded. Some were

DREADFULLY BURNED

But more prostrated by fright. All doctors, surgeons and dispensaries in the neighborhood were called into requisition. The first impression was that the explosion of gas caused the disaster, but later inquiries tend to show it was malice. The two rear carriages were damaged most. They are mere skeletons. Another theory is that the explosion was caused by foul gas air accumulating in the tunnel. This, however, is untenable, because no premonitory symptoms were observed. The general opinion of railway officials and experts is that the disaster was caused by some explosive material which had been placed probably in the rearmost carriage. Meanwhile searching inquiry is proceeding. It is believed about

FORTY PERSONS WERE INJURED,

Some dangerously. Almost simultaneously with the Praed street affair a violent explosion occurred on the underground railway between Charing Cross and Westminster stations. The windows of the signal [illegible] stations in the tunnel were shattered and at Charing Cross the glass roof of the station partly collapsed. The report is described as being like that of artillery. The effects were similar to those of Praed street explosion. Carriage lamps, windows, etc., were smashed. All traffic was suspended for a while. Although both explosions are matters of the greatest mystery they are generally thought to be of

FENIAN ORIGIN

The shock of both explosions is described by the officials as very similar to the shock and explosion at the local government board offices in March last in which Dr. Gallagher was implicated. It is stated that four such [illegible] similar to rockets were found in the tunnel near Praed street station. Altogether six carriages were shattered by the explosion near Praed street. Although about forty persons were admitted to the hospital many more are injured but sent directly to their own homes.

INTENSE EXCITEMENT OVER THE EXPLOSIONS

LONDON, Oct 31.—Excitement over the explosion at the underground railway last night is great. Large number of policemen under special inspectors were on duty all night at the various railway stations, and are now guarding the line. A heavy force are also watching the line. The explosion at Charing Cross occurred at a distance 200 yards west of the station. There was no train there at the time. The walls of the tunnel were battered but the rails were not misplaced. Windows in the station were blown out, but the roof was not damaged. No person was hurt there. At the Praed-street station the force of the explosion was terrible. The tunnel there was not destroyed, but a deep hole was excavated in the road bed, bricks were blown out and gas pipes and telegraph lines broken. A refreshment saloon was wrecked. The explosion occurred immediately under the passing train forty yards from the station. All the persons injured were in the last two carriages. Twenty eight persons wounded were taken to St Mary's hospital. Four of them are seriously hurt, but are expected to recover. The others will be able to go home to-night. Both explosions occurred at about 8:10 in the evening.

NO CLUE TO THE PERPETRATORS

LONDON, Oct 31.—All the detectives of the Metropolitan force are searching for the perpetrators of the outrages and the railway officers are assisting them. The police deny that any rocket cartridges were found near the scene of the explosion. No traces have been discovered of the nature of the explosive. It is ascertained that the explosions could not have been caused by coal gas. No clue to the persons causing the explosions has been obtained. Major Majendie of the board of trade is now (11 A. M.) making an examination of the scene of the explosion at Charing Cross and trains are running as usual this morning.

LONDON, Oct 31—3 o'clock.—No explosive matter has yet been found. At the Praed street station an inspector from the home office viewed the scene of the explosion and afterward examined the damaged train. He expressed the opinion that cartridges made of first order explosives such as gun cotton were used. The guard states that while looking out of the car window just after the train left the Praed street station he saw some sparks nearly underneath the carriage and immediately afterward heard an explosion. The explosives used at the Charing Cross station were of a small quantity and are not believed to have been dynamite.

O'DONOVAN ROSSA KNOWS ALL ABOUT IT

NEW YORK, Oct 31.—O'Donovan Rossa states that the explosions yesterday under the underground railways in London was the work of the Fenian brotherhood, of whose movement he is apprised. London would be in ashes, he said, before long, unless England gave up Ireland. New developments might be expected at any moment, for it was now the purpose of the brotherhood to reduce England to submission.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The police warned the railway officials three months ago that they had advices from America of threatened explosions and precautions were taken to provide against them. The explosives used last evening were powerful but in limited quantity and the holes in the ground and brick work are small.

NITRO-GLYCERINE THE AGENT USED

LONDON, Oct 31.—Investigation made by scientific advisers to the war department has led to the conclusion that nitro glycerine in some form was the agent used in both cases. Later inquiries confirm the early statement that a large number of people were injured. In addition to over thirty treated at the hospitals a large number are attended by private surgeons. One of the victims, a corporal of Hussars, says he was talking with a friend on Praed street when he saw suddenly a very bright flash immediately followed by a terrible report. He was struck by something and almost knocked insensible. When the train arrived at Edgeware road he staggered across the platform and was picked up by a soldier. He remembers nothing more. This is only one of many narratives.

THE TIMES COMMENTS

LONDON, Oct 31.—The Times states that since the disastrous events at the local government board in March last nothing has occurred so calculated to excite public alarm as the explosions last night. It is evident the occurrence was not accidental. The explosives were of a most powerful nature. Suspicion points in one direction only. It is hoped the authors will speedily be brought to justice.

FRAGMENTS OF THE SHELLS FOUND

LONDON, Oct 31.—Persons arrested have all been discharged for want of incriminating evidence. The explosives were in glass shells of the size of a pigeon egg. Fragments of the shell found were perforated with small holes. The shells had been charged with nitro-glycerine.

WHAT THE IRISH THINK.

LONDON, Oct 31.—The explosions have caused intense excitement in Irish circles in London. Irish almost unanimously think the outrages were due to the deliberately planned machinations of enemies of the National party of Ireland, who intend to create anti-Irish feeling in England. It will be next to impossible, they think, to have a perfectly impartial jury to try O'Donnell. It is also remarked that the explosions occurred about the moment when Davitt was opening his address in St James hall. It is stated the police are unaware of the presence in London of any of the O'Donovan Rossa dynamiters. However all Irish rendezvous are closely watched.

PRECAUTIONS AT GLASGOW

GLASGOW, Oct 31.—Precautions have been taken here against explosions on railways. All banks, public buildings and prisons are closely watched. Extra wardens are placed around prisoners when exercising.

Three children of James Knight, of Chatham county, N. C., died of diphtheria. The same week two of his children died from the effects of rattlesnake bites, and the only remaining child was fatally scalded a few days thereafter in a pot of boiling soap.

During the last thirty years the Church of England has raised $250,000,000 for the building and repairing of churches and cathedrals and $800,000 for endowments.

Messrs. D. & J. W. Colton, of Winchester, Ind., happened last spring to get some of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge. After selling a few bottles, the demand became so great for it that their stock was soon exhausted. They state that it has produced the best effect wherever used, and is very popular among the people.

Andrew Downing, of Cranburgh township, Venango county, gave his child one teaspoonful of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and she passed 177 worms. Next morning, on repetition of the dose, she passed 113 more.

THE CRY ABOUT WOOL

Certain demagogues are endeavoring to make political capital out of the condition of the wool market. Wool this year bears a lower price than usual, and the partisan demagogue is ready with the assertion that the lower price is due to the reduction of the duty. This reduction is attributed, first to one party and then to the other, as the partisan interest of the speaker or writer may prompt, and to make the argument more intense, it is frequently asserted that while the duty on wool was reduced, robbing the poor wool-growers, the duty on manufactures of wool was increased, feeding fat the bloated manufacturer.

The truth about this matter is very simple. The new tariff act was the result of the labor of a commission appointed in pursuance of an act of congress and representing both parties, the work of the commission was debated in both houses and revised with careful attention, and as the result of it all certain changes and reductions were made, mainly by the consent of members of both parties. The reductions were, however, very slight. Protection was too firmly intrenched to be seriously hurt. The reduction of the duty on wool was quite small, if indeed there was any real reduction at all. There was a slight change in the manner of laying the duty, and the demagogue as his custom is, has made the most of a subject upon which figures may be handled to suit his purposes.

The main cause of the reduced price of wool this year in the general market is directly traceable to the over production of certain kinds of wool in this country coupled with a tariff that keeps out a class of foreign wools needed in our manufactures. We do not produce all classes of woolen goods and such as we do produce are produced in excess, so that the mills have been obliged to shut down and a low price for domestic fleeces has been the result. It was shown before the new tariff went into operation that one-half the woolen mills of the country were idle, owing to accumulation of stocks and a low market, proving that the causes which reduced the market value of domestic wool were in operation before new tariff was even conceived.

The assertion so often made that the new tariff increased the duty on woolen goods, and consequently the profits of manufacturers, is without foundation. Instead of an increase there has been an actual reduction of the duty on woolens, amounting to about 16 per cent. The manufacturers on this side complain of this. For example, Mr. Charles Fletcher, proprietor of the Providence worsted mills, who recently returned from a visit to Europe declares that the reduction of our duties has been a great help to the Bradford and Huddersfield woolen trade, and that the mills of those districts are largely engaged on American orders. "With the reduced tariff the American manufacturer could just about put certain grades of woolens in the market even with what it costs to manufacture the same line of goods in England, import them here and pay the duty." He further expressed the opinion that "another reduction on manufactured woolens would ruin the business in the United States."

The truth to be deduced from these variant opinions is that there can not be enough "protection" to satisfy everybody. Each particular interest has its own selfish object, and each looks to the government to give it an advantage over the others. Of course, if the wool grower succeeds in getting back the old duty on wool the manufacturer will contend for the old duty on woolen goods. Between the two the man who wants a coat will have a hard time of it.

JOHN BROWN

The last number of the North American Review has an astonishing article on the character of John Brown written by Rev. Daniel N. Utter, formerly the editor of a Unitarian journal at Olympia, and known to many of our readers. The article which is devoted to Brown's career in Kansas twenty-seven years ago, is a virulent attack upon his character, made wholly for an iconoclastic purpose. Its animus is simply that of detraction and as an argument to show that John Brown ought not to be regarded as a hero, in any sense, it refutes itself. The charges with reference to the Pottawatamie slaughter are made without giving any authority for them other than the confessions of John Brown on the scaffold and the insane mutterings of his son. They may be true, but they constitute but a small part of the man's history, and ought not to be singled out and treated as the sufficient exponent of his character. John Brown was a fanatic, as all admit. He was devoted in the completest sense of that word, but he was not a coward, and no one will believe, without the most positive testimony, that "he ran away from Kansas to save his life." Many extravagant things were said about him at the time of his execution, twenty-four years ago, but they were said by extravagant people. What if Emerson did speak of him as the "saint whose martyrdom will make the gallows glorious like the cross?" What if Thoreau did say, "He could not have been tried by his peers, for his peers did not exist?" Suppose Theodore Parker did write from Rome "Brown will die, I think, like a martyr, and also like a saint. None of the Christian martyrs died in vain and from Stephen, who was stoned at Jerusalem, to Mary Dyer whom our fathers hanged on a bough of 'the great tree' on Boston Common, I think there have been few spirits more pure and devoted than John Brown's, and none that gave up their breath in a nobler cause. Let the American state hang his body, and the American church damn his soul, still the blessing of such as are ready to perish will fall on him, and the universal justice of the infinitely perfect God will make him welcome home. The road to heaven is as short from the gallows as from a throne, perhaps also as easy." All these indulged in extravagance or rhapsody and they have never carried many people with them in this statement of their estimate of John Brown. He is not improperly exalted in the popular conception. The people regard him with a certain awe such as all devoted characters, like Joan of Arc, and, not to name others, Stonewall Jackson, inspire. He was not a nihilist. He did not wish to destroy anything but slavery. He saw clearly what the plain common sense of the nation could not see at the time that slavery could not be removed except by war, and therefore he sought to inaugurate war. In support of what he believed to be a just war he fought desperately and sometimes cruelly and when he reached the limit of his endeavor he gave up his life with a heroism which impressed the whole world. He set the example for the Union hosts who shortly afterwards volunteered to save the Union, which the slave holder said must die in order that slavery might live. It is vain now and will always be vain for any writer successfully to hold him up to execration, much less to contempt. So long as men are moved by examples of self sacrifice, it will not be possible to abate from the awe which is inspired by the monumental character such desperate devotion to the cause of human freedom.

This woman had a prosecutor. She was a New York saleswoman compelled to work to support herself and a worthless husband. Arrested for stealing from her employers she stated that she had been forced by her husband's brutal violence to commit the thefts and finally, when she left him rather than continue the business of shop-lifting for his benefit, he wrote an anonymous letter that caused her arrest. Here is a text for some hoodlum journalist to preach from, showing that the woman "refused such duties as heaven and nature fitted her for," and that the poor husband is the injured party.

THE FORTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS

The forty-eighth congress will begin what is commonly called its "long session" on the first Monday of December. Sessions of congress which immediately precede presidential campaigns as this one will, have unusual political importance and are less apt than others perhaps to injure the business interests of the country. For both parties are then on their best behavior, while, at the same time, each is endeavoring to make it appear that its opponent party is doing everything to send the country straight to the demnition bow wows. The result of such strategy usually is that everything in the shape of positive legislation receives careful scrutiny and measures of doubtful propriety such as the late notorious river and harbor bill are deferred until after the presidential election. The fact that the control of the popular house has passed from one party to the other generally in the off years shows that parties venture more in the sessions following a change of administration.

The republican party obtained control of the house in the thirty-sixth congress and held it until the forty fourth. The democrats controlled the three following until the last, when the republicans again had a majority of members. Each of these changes occurred after a session in which the majority did something to forfeit the confidence of the people. In the last congress the republicans by the choice of a speaker and the resulting organization of committees, with a view to the perpetuation in power of the Grant senatorial syndicate, which the representatives of the party in the Chicago convention had rejected, and by acts of legislation impudently and arrogantly defied the will of the people as expressed in the nomination of Garfield. A tidal wave followed, and then it was amusing to see members of the house in the following session—the last of the forty seventh congress—who five months before had derisively and angrily refused to give a paltry sum and to aid a single experiment in the reform of the civil service who had not been able to laugh loudly enough at the ridiculous whim of transacting the public business on business principles, tumble over each other in their breathless haste to make that whim the national policy. Jay Hubbell's committee, with brazen effrontery, had issued a campaign text book in the choice style of Geo. C. Gorham and the great Frank Hatton, spitting on such men as George William Curtis, and had levied assessments on all the clerks and subordinate officers of the federal service. The net result of such arrogance was ascertained last November. The democrats gained 61 members and the republicans lost 33. The republicans had in the last congress of 293 members, 149, in this congress of 325 they have 119, the democrats 191, the readjusters 6, greenback labor 2, and independent 5, with two vacancies. The northern states send 100 republicans, 101 democratic, and 3 independent representatives; the southern states send 16 republican, 98 democratic, and 9 independent and readjuster members. Three of the independents are from the north, Illinois, Iowa and Massachusetts each sending one. The south sends six readjusters from Virginia, and one independent from Texas, one from Mississippi and one from North Carolina.

Among the leading democratic members will be Randall of Pennsylvania, Carlyle and Blackburn of Kentucky, Hewitt and Cox of New York, Hurd and Converse of Ohio, Tucker of Virginia, Curtin of Pennsylvania, Reagan of Texas, Blount of Georgia, Eaton of Connecticut, Holman of Indiana and Rosecrans of California. The republicans have Reed of Maine, Poland and Stewart of Vermont, Hiscock of New York, Kasson of Iowa, Calkins of Indiana, Kelley of Pennsylvania, Haskell of Kansas, William P. Kellogg of Louisiana, and to these should be added Robinson of Massachusetts if he should not be elected governor of his state. There are three who have been formerly United States senators—Eaton of Connecticut, Poland of Vermont and Pryor of Alabama. Nearly one-half of the whole number are new members without previous experience in congress. Seven states—Alabama, Arkansas, California, Delaware, Florida, Georgia and Missouri are solidly democratic, eleven—Vermont, Colorado, Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, Oregon and Rhode Island are solidly republican. Of the southern states North Carolina sends four republican representatives, Kentucky, Maryland, Tennessee and Texas send two each and Louisiana, Mississippi, South Carolina and West Virginia one each. O'Hara of North Carolina is the only colored representative—Samuel Lee having been defeated by Mackey in the "colored district" of South Carolina, Carter having been defeated with colored votes by General Chalmers in Mississippi and Lynch having suffered the same fate in the sixth district of that state. The leading candidates for the speakership are Carlyle and Randall. Randall was speaker of the forty fourth, forty-fifth and forty-sixth congresses and was liked by the republicans, both because of his strong protective tariff proclivities and because of his general fairness in the chair. Carlyle is opposed to protection. Either of these candidates would make a good speaker.

The senate will stand republicans 38, democrats 36, readjusters 2. David Davis, independent of Illinois will be succeeded by Shelby Cullom, republican; Lafayette Grover, democrat of Oregon by Joseph N. Dolph, republican; William P. Kellogg, republican of Louisiana, by Randall L. Gibson, democrat, and John W. Johnston, democrat, of Virginia by Harrison H. Riddleberger, readjuster. These are the only political changes in the senate but other changes occur through the failure of the re-election of old senators. Windom of Minnesota is succeeded by Dwight M. Sabin, Ferry of Michigan by Thomas W. Palmer, Saunders of Nebraska by Charles F. Manderson and Rollins of New Hampshire by Austin W. Pike. Vermont, one of the smallest states, has the strongest representation in the senate, and, in proportion to numbers, the ablest in the house. Neither party, so far has given any hint of the course it will pursue with reference to subjects of political policy or general legislation and the prospect would indicate a tame and uninteresting session were it not for its close relation to the coming presidential campaign. What will really happen no uninspired prophet can predict.

Times have changed in the southern states since the day when it was thought that without slave labor there could be no productive industry. All crops are far heavier under free labor than they ever were under slave labor, and there is now a very rapid advance in manufacturing industry. All this tells upon the wealth of the whole southern states which is increasing at a phenomenal rate. Thus, we have from the New Orleans Times Democrat some figures of twelve southern states, showing their advance in wealth in the last four years, which are exceedingly encouraging if not indeed remarkable. The states included are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia. In 1879 in these states the taxable property aggregated $2,184,227,547. In 1883 it had increased to $2,824,934,575, an increase of $640,707,028 or over $160,000,000 per year. The journal referred to explains that the increase not only represents increased crops but manufactures and commerce, cotton manufacturing alone having increased over 60 per cent in that time.

The church of England shows signs of increasing activity and prosperity. According to a statement made by Mr. R. W. Henneker of Sherbrooke, Can., before the Episcopal convention, England has, during the past thirty years, increased her clergy to the number of 2000 and her churches to 5000 and in the meantime she has raised $250,000,000 for the building and repairing of churches and cathedrals, and $500,000,000 for endowments.

A RARE FIELD

Within the past few weeks THE OREGONIAN has pointed out no less than ten distinctive lines of industry for which this country affords all the conditions for success and highly profitable success, but which are wholly or partly neglected. They are the common industries which require no uncommon or expensive skill, and for which no great capital is necessary. Fruit-growing, fruit-packing, butter-making, cheese making, hay production, gardening, beef production and a score of other productive industries lag behind the general development of the county and fall far short of supplying local consumptive demands. Rich soils, a mild and equable climate, perennial verdure, proximity to market, cheap and easy transportation, cheap lands and unfailing demand and high prices form an array of advantages which cannot, we believe, be matched by any other locality in the United States. Nowhere else is there a steady market so poorly supplied. The shiftlessness of producers or those who should be producers affords rare opportunities to industrious new comers. We need men of enterprise in a score of industries. No thrifty farmer ever settled in this country who did not do well. A hundred instances could easily be cited where the highest prosperity follows intelligent industry and not one failure. Certain parties have failed, it is true, but failure has been due in every case to lack of a proper knowledge of the thing undertaken. When our industrial opportunities are known we shall soon have a class of people who will revolutionize our market conditions. And 'tis a consummation to be devoutly wished.

The Boston Advertiser says: "As the smoke of the November elections clears away it will be found that the Mormon question is the one of most absorbing popular interest." There is certainly a more general and deeper feeling on this subject than ever existed before in all parts of the country. The Philadelphia Record, a pronounced democratic journal, says: "It may be necessary, as Governor Murray recommends, for congress to abolish the present government of Utah as the only means of getting rid of the Mormon theocracy. The question is surrounded with great difficulties but the theocratic rule of the Mormon church in Utah is growing intolerable." The New York Mail and Express calls for a legislative commission for Utah; the Milwaukee Sentinel asks that Utah be placed under martial law and that a capable soldier be placed in charge; the Chicago papers make the same demand, and the southern papers also demand that the Chinese restriction law be applied likewise to the Mormon immigrants.

Mr. J. C. Trullinger gives a very satisfactory explanation for the importation of boxes by salmon packers this fall, but he does not explain why it is done to a greater or less extent every year, and thus we understand to be the fact. But it is certainly a fact that fishing boats are imported from San Francisco by the packers every spring and for this there can be no reasonable excuse. The lumber of which these boats are made is cut in Oregon or Washington territory—much of it no doubt at mills on the Columbia river. It can not cost more to build a boat at Astoria than at San Francisco. There is lack of enterprise or proper spirit somewhere.

The Ohio prohibitionist candidate for governor sent his check for $1000 to the state committee of the Women's Christian Temperance Union with the statement that it represented the amount saved to him this year by the reduction of his taxes under the operation of the state law. Queerly enough however that estimable gentleman and the sisters to whom his generosity was extended were at that moment employed in an effort to break down the Scott law and render such an enactment evermore impossible. Now that failure of that effort has resulted it is to be hoped that the liberal donor and the willing recipients of his benefaction will be alike content to accept with gratitude a good half loaf as very much better than an entire absence of bread.

"Political parties," says John Bright in a recent letter, "seem to me unavoidable in a free country, but in my view, there is a higher law to which we should submit. I condemned our warlike policy thirty years ago—I condemn it now—and I left the government on their Egyptian blunder." Mr. Bright added that he did not therefore leave the party with which he has been so long connected. But he hoped that the party would become wiser.

It is said that Beecher made $21,000 during his recent lecture trip to Oregon, California and Texas, but this is said by one of his admirers who is generally allowed 50 per cent off on his statements. Mr. Beecher admits that the results were satisfactory.

New Blocks on Washington Street.—Hon. D. P. Thompson has bought from the estate of the late C. A. Burckardt the lot, 70x100 feet, on the southwest corner of Second and Washington, and next spring will build a handsome five-story bank building. The price paid was $60,000. Mrs. John L. Waldo owns the northwest corner, and next year will build a three-story brick business block to replace the present frame structure. With the Labbe Brothers' two fine blocks on the east side, the corners of Second and Washington will be adorned with handsomer buildings than any other intersection in the city. It is reported that Hon. Henry Failing will erect a fine block on the southeast corner of Third and Washington next year.

Want New Quarters.—It is reported that the Ivy Green saloon is to be removed to the building now occupied by the Shade saloon, on Front street, near Morrison. The Shade has not been the most respectable place in this city, but it is the abode of innocence and virtue when compared with the notorious Ivy Green. The proprietor of the building, Saxe by name resides at McMinnville, and if he understood the matter he would probably object to his property being made the haunt of such a crew as frequent the Ivy Green. The purlieus of Slabtown are a more fitting location for the Ivy Green than Front street, in the vicinity of two of our principal hotels.

More Dock Needed.—Our harbor at the present time presents a very fine appearance, being crowded with ships, many of them superior ones. At every turn on the streets bronzed sea captains are met, while 'prentice boys in their neat uniforms can be seen by the dozen. Already complaints are made that ships can find no room at the docks and are obliged to lie two and three deep. The scarcity of docks at which ballast can be unloaded causes considerable inconvenience. It is evident that our dockage accommodation will have to be increased.

Re-Opening Business.—Ralph Prager, Clara Prager and Francis Prager yesterday filed articles in the county clerk's office incorporating a new company, to be known under the old name of "Farmers' and Mechanics'" store. Ralph was a member of the old firm of Prager Bros., who failed recently, and whose stock was sold by the sheriff. To their credit be it said, however, that the judgment creditors were paid dollar for dollar. The capital stock of the new company, who intend to resume business in Portland as soon as practicable, is stated at $30,000.

Mrs. Schauer's Statement.—Contrary to common report, undoubtedly spread by her husband, who has the reputation of getting drunk occasionally and rendering home unpleasant, Mrs Emma Schauer has not gone back to live with her legal consort. This is positive, as she herself writes to the Oregonian as follows: "I wish to state that I am not living with my husband, and I did not pay the costs in the police court. It was by request of Mr. Schauer that I withdrew the charge, he paying the costs of both courts."

Accidental but Expensive.—By the breaking down of the pontoon at the railroad ferry on Sunday evening A. H. Johnson is out and injured to the tune of $1000. Six of his cattle escaped and one was lost, and the whole band were so razed and harried that they lost a great deal in weight. No blame is attached to anyone, as the disaster was purely accidental. The pontoon will be fixed so as to prevent such an accident happening again

Tired of the Business.—In the police court yesterday, James Brown, a wholesale liquor dealer on First street, between Pine and Ash, who had been arrested for selling without license, forfeited $50 bail in lieu of a fine. Brown says he has had enough of trying to beat the city, and as he don't think much of the whisky business anyway, proposes to sell out entirely and close up next week.

The Willamette Bridge.—Judge Deady decides that the Northern Pacific Railroad Company has the right, under its charter, to bridge the Willamette river at or near this city, holding, however, that use of the right is subject to review by the court upon complaint that the bridge is to be erected upon a plan which will create unnecessary impediment to navigation.

Change in Sailing Dates.—Commencing to-morrow, the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company will dispatch a steamer from Portland to San Francisco twice a week, viz; Tuesdays and Fridays. The first steamer from Portland under the new schedule is the Columbia, which goes out to-morrow night. Steamers leave San Francisco every Wednesday and Saturday.

Another Democratic Journal.—John W. Kelly, a well-known printer and publisher, has issued the prospectus of a tri-weekly democratic paper to be published in East Portland. It will be called the Era, and the first number is promised December 2. Mr. Kelly announces that it will be straight-out democratic, but no organ.

BRIEF MENTION.

"The World" continues to draw crowded houses at New Market theater.

A black valise containing some clothing, picked up last night on the street, awaits an owner at the police station.

John Clancey and James Brady, who were arrested for roaming about the streets after midnight, were each sentenced to spend ten days in jail.

James Lowe, who assaulted and battered Patrick McGinnis, was arraigned in the police court yesterday, tried, found guilty, and sent to the county jail for fifteen days.

Enoch Arden and Moses Lang, Indians were brought in from the Siletz reservation yesterday as witnesses in the case of William Price, charged with selling liquor to Indians.

Last evening Robert Erickson, one of the crew of a vessel lying at the foot of D street, while going on board fell into the river. He was fished out none the worse for his involuntary bath.

The Ladies' auxiliary committee of the Young Men's Christian Association meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock in the rooms of the association. Ladies interested in this work will please attend.

Lots 23 and 24 in block 21, Albina, formerly the property of George P. Riley, were sold yesterday at sheriff's sale under a foreclosure of mortgage given to M. A. Smith. The lots were purchased by one Dalton, a citizen of Albina, for $615.

"Handsome"—God save the mark—Harry Reese, one of the vilest of vile thugs, who live with lewd women, was arraigned in the police court yesterday for that offense against law and decency. An examination of the case will be had to-day.

Thomas Wallace, accused of the crime of mayhem, waived examination in the police court yesterday and was committed to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. John Dunn, the complaining witness, was also committed for safe keeping.

The Astoria Musical Society gave its sixth quarterly concert Tuesday evening. Professor E. Cook of this city has been its conductor from the first, and its continued successful existence speaks well for the musical interest in Astoria as well as for the ability of Professor Cook. "Jeptha" will be the next work.

TO-NIGHT'S FETE.

Turn halle last night was a busy scene of preparation for the Fete of Nations, to take place this and to-morrow evenings, under the auspices of the ladies of the Unitarian church. Rehearsals of tableaux, scenes, dances, songs and chants were held, and everything will be comme il faut to-night. There will be six booths at the sides of the hall, all neatly, yet richly furnished, and beautifully decorated. Next to the stage on the south side is the French booth, the occupants to be dressed in the fashion of the ladies and gentlemen of Louis the fifteenth's court. Next comes the Oriental booth representing the Persian, Arabian, Turk, Chinaman and Ethiopian. Next is the bon bon booth. On the opposite side there will be the Italian, Scotch and Spanish booths.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the first tableau will be given. It will be made up of eight nations, artistically arranged, the Goddess of Liberty and Uncle Sam in the foreground. Then will follow the grand march; the minuet by eight ladies and gentlemen in French court dress; tableau of Abou Ben Adhem, with chant; Spanish dance with castanets by four couples in national costume; tableau, French war scene, with the Marseillaise, by Mr. Lombard solo, by Mrs. Edgar E. Coursen; solo and chorus, "John Anderson, My Jo, John," by the Scotch booth; tableau, Spanish and French love scene. All the costumes have been prepared with much care and no little expense, and in furnishing the booths, many private residences and all the furniture stores have been drawn on.

At 10 P. M., the floor will be cleared and visitors will be permitted to dance. From the preparations made it is safe to predict a complete success of the fete.

THE IMPORTATION OF BOXES.

To the Editor of The Oregonian:

I have seen in your paper a criticism upon the importation of fish boxes from California which is unjust to Oregon and to many enterprising men here. Last summer two mills and box factories were burned at Astoria, in the midst of the fishing season, with all their stock of boxes as well as all their lumber in stock for boxes. Those two factories made perhaps three-fourths of all the fish boxes on the Columbia river. There is a large box factory at Knappton on the Columbia and another at Oak point. The first is within eight miles of Astoria, the other forty miles above Astoria. Either mill and box factory could make all the boxes wanted for the lower Columbia river. But competition drove them nearly out of the business, and when the two box factories were burned at Astoria these mills were not prepared to meet the demand at once, so cannery men were obliged to send anywhere that they could get boxes, on account of having large contracts for fish sold to be delivered at a certain time. If the manufacturing interests were properly encouraged in Oregon and Washington by our wholesale and consuming people and by our capitalists, and if wild schemes of speculation in stocks were let alone Oregon would flourish as the older states do. We have more men of energy in the line of manufacture in Oregon in numbers, and proportion to any state in the Union.

JOE BACHMAN ARRESTED.

Three Creditors Bring Criminal Charges Against him—Additional Crookedness in the Insurance Business.

A sudden change appears to have come over the spirit of the dreams of those persons who were forced to consider themselves swindled by the alleged failure of J. Bachman & Bro. So gigantic and stupendous was the dishonesty that had taken unto itself $60,000 and then almost mockingly seemed to say, "what are you going to do about it?" that the injured depositors were at first absolutely petrified with astonishment. It really seemed as if they could do nothing, and hence their inactivity. But as their minds gradually became accustomed to the fact that their money was "gone for good," and that the Bachman's showed no intention of returning anything, even if that were possible, they began to remember that there were laws in the state that would punish crime. If they could not get their money they could at least punish those who had defrauded them of their savings—who had continued to take deposits when they knew that they were already defaulters to a large amount. If a poor devil who had stolen an overcoat could be yanked up in the police court, sent to the grand jury, indicted, found guilty and taken to the penitentiary, all inside of a week, could not something be done to a person whose peculations ran up high in the thousands? "We will try and see what can be done," thought the depositors, and so they did.

ARRESTS AND LAW SUITS.

At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the campaign was opened by Joe Bachman being arrested at his residence on complaint of Celia Levy, a saloon keeper, charging the firm with embezzlement of $200. She had about $1400 deposited with them, but as the object of the complaint was merely to commence proceedings, the sum was made nominal. Bachman gave bail for his appearance in the sum of $1000, A. Salmon and C. F. Silter being sureties. Hattie Aymer also made complaint, charging the Bachmans with embezzling $640. During the forenoon the Mercury Publishing Company commenced suit in Justice Greene's court to recover the sum of $200, alleged to be due them from the bankrupt firm.

Suit was also commenced in the United States circuit court yesterday by Joshua Taylor, to recover $1000 with interest on a promissory note given by Joe and Ad. Bachman to Ladd & Tilton, and by them assigned to Mr. Taylor. Last evening Tom Connell swore out a warrant in the police court for the arrest of Joe Bachman on a charge of larceny of $2740.25, deposited with the firm between August 1 and October 22.

His bail was fixed at $3000, which was furnished by T. D. Manhoster and M. Koshland. Bail in the case of Hattie Aymer was given in the sum of $1000 by Ben Norden and A. Salmon.

FURTHER CROOKEDNESS.

As the case develops, further disreputable conduct is brought to light. In addition to a large insurance business for the seven companies which they represented, the firm did an extensive brokerage insurance business. That is to say they took a line of insurance too large for their own companies to carry, and reinsured the surplus in other agencies. Premiums due Dobinson's agency for reinsurance are reported at $2500, and Laidlaw's agency, $1900. All this money the Bachmans have collected from the policy holders and failed to turn over to the companies. A policy in the State Investment (premium $80) was issued to a Front street firm early in July. Bachmans were paid and gave a receipt September 1. This premium, though four months had elapsed, has never been paid to the company issuing the policy.

Litigation is certain to result from the complications. The insurers claim that, not having received a consideration, they are not required to give protection and may cancel the policies. Bachman, they maintain, was an agent of the insured, and the insured as principal is liable for his acts so far as it relates to the placing of that particular insurance. On the other hand, the policy holders claim that the policy itself is evidence of payment of premium and the customary credit of thirty or sixty days is only an accommodation by the agent to the insured, and the premium becomes a debt of the firm to the agent personally. Another claim of the insured is that the companies which issued the policies should have used diligence in reporting to the policy holders that premiums had not been paid, and should not have let matters run on indefinitely.

THE EAST SIDE.

DEATH OF PROF. E. E. BURKE

The somewhat sudden death of Prof. E. E. Burke at Eugene City Tuesday morning, at 10 o'clock, occasioned much surprise and regret to his relatives and friends in this city. Always the possessor of excellent health and spirits, he was taken sick but one week ago, and though he continued to grow worse, a fatal termination was entirely unexpected. Deceased was formerly principal of the school in district No. 2, having resigned that position last January, to accept a position at the university at Eugene, which he occupied till the time of his death. He was a young man of sterling qualities and much promise, and his premature death is universally regretted. The remains were brought down on the train last evening, and conveyed to the residence of his mother, Mrs. Bosschen, on Sixteenth street, between N and O. Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this (Thursday) morning, at the East Portland M. E. church, and friends and acquaintances are invited to be present.

OFFICIAL NEW YEAR.

The terms of office of recorder, treasurer, marshal, city attorney, city surveyor and street commissioner of the city of East Portland, terminated last evening, and to-day the new terms commence. Of the above mentioned officers, the recorder (Stewart) and marshal (Linville), were re-elected and will continue in undisturbed possession of their respective offices; the treasurer (Welch) being succeeded by F. L. Logan. The other officers—attorney, surveyor and street commissioner—are appointed by the council, but on account of the existing municipal muddle no new appointments have been made. As these appointments should have been made previous to the 1st of November, it is an open question as to whether the present incumbents hold over for another term.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

The sack containing the East Portland mail which arrived by the O. R. & N. road yesterday morning was discovered at the lower depot by the city marshal last evening, which explains why people here did not get their mail from the upper country yesterday. N. P. Tomlinson has the contract for carrying the mail to and from the depot, but sub-lets to another party. East Portland suffers sufficiently from insufficient mail facilities, without such acts of carelessness and neglect.

NOTES.

Captain H. Cook has leased the Kenworthy building on J street for a coffin factory.

Dr. D. M. Eddy leaves on the outgoing steamer for San Francisco to fulfill an important engagement, and will probably not return alone.

Bruce Smith, son of Captain John Smith, Indian agent, has returned here after an absence of eighteen years, during which time he has traveled extensively.

Fidelity lodge, No. 4, A. O. U. W., of this city, propose, on Friday evening of next week, to give a literary and musical entertainment, to be followed by a ball, at Neppach's hall.

SALEM NOTES.

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SALEM, Oct. 31.

George A. Edes is much better this morning and his recovery is almost assurred.

Hon. Edward Hirsch, state treasurer, accompanied by his wife and eldest daughter, went to Portland yesterday, on a short visit.

F. G. Sanborn, representing the law publishing house of Sumner, Whitney & Co. of San Francisco, is in the city on a business trip.

Considerable property is changing hands in Marion county and prices are ruling firm; indicative of entire confidence in our future prospects.

Rev. Stephen Savin, having secured places for a number of colored girls as housemaids and domestics, will to-day return to Portland to complete his labors.

The Home Amusements band have published the programme for their entertainment, which comes off on the 16th inst. and embraces recitations, music, vocal and instrumental, short addresses, etc. It promises to be very interesting.

A call has been issued for the loyal ladies of Salem to meet with Sedgwick post No. 10, G. A. R., on Tuesday evening next, for the purpose of organizing a society auxiliary to the G. A. R., the membership of which will embrace those of the fair and gentler sex.

Woodburn lodge of Good Templars in this county has elected the following officers for the ensuing term: F. C. Walker, W. C. T.; Ada Settlemair, W. V. T.; B. F. Jones, W. S.; Delia Leyman, W. F. S.; Elsie Settlemeir, W. T.; Eugene Remington, W. M.; B. F. Cooley, W. C.; Willie Laughmiller, W. O. G.; Hattie Devoron, W. I. G.

The officers at the insane asylum having failed to find the proper commitment papers in many cases will be obliged to call upon the county court of Marion county to examine and recommit several patients, which duty will be performed either to-day or to-morrow. Several patients have already been discharged and more will follow in a very short time.

The camp fire held last evening by Sedgwick post No. 10, G. A. R., of this city, was largely attended and proved very interesting throughout. Post Commander T. C. Smith in an appropriate manner extended a cordial welcome to the visitors, and then introduced Professor Van Scoy of the Willamette university, who delivered a short address on the effect that military life has upon the character of a man. He drew some well worded comparisons, and was loudly applauded at its close. Short reminiscences were related by comrades McElroy, Babcock, Dinsmore, Stolz and others. Comrade Cooper rendered a couple of his vocal solos in his usual pathetic manner. Colonel J. H. Roberts recited "Shamus O'Brien" with great success, and Miss Nellie Bennett pleased her hearers with her recitation, "Children of the Battle Field." Post Commander Smith recited "The Wounded Soldier," and several army songs were sung during the evening. The Home Amusement band were present and played several choice selections during the evening, while pork and beans, hard tack and coffee served to alleviate the cravings of appetite. The event throughout was one that will long be remembered.

CORRECTION.

KALAMA, W. T., Oct. 30.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

In your issue of to-day, in the list of pensioners, I see you list me "g. s. w. left toe." Now, I had as soon you had said I was shot in the back, which no soldier regards as an honorable wound. My wound is "g. s. w. left fore-arm," the larger bone almost entirely shot away. Hoping you will correct the error, I am very truly yours,

W. D. CLOSE.

[The list as it appeared in The Oregonian was a reprint of the official list published by the pension office. Doubtless it was a transcriber's or compositor's error.]

Captain O'Farrell, after whom O'Farrell avenue is named, and who is known to everyone in Chicago, said to one of our representatives: "I am only too happy to say that I did use St. Jacobs Oil; my right leg was crippled in a most awful manner with inflammatory rheumatism, and my sufferings were extreme. I tried more physicians than I care to count, and they gave me no more ease and freedom from pain than if I did not have them in attendance. I heard about St. Jacobs Oil, used it and was cured."—Chicago Times.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Eastern Oregon.

The stockmen of Umatilla and Wasco counties are forming an association for mutual benefit and protection

Baker City Tribune: The deposit and shipment of about $100,000 in gold dust and bullion from this city during the past ten days may do much to dispel the feeling of uneasiness caused by the croakings of a few chronics, who continually assert that our mines are of but little value.

Mrs. Lida Bell writes The Oregonian as follows from Milton, Umatilla county: "I have a cherry tree of the Kentish variety in my orchard, one mile above Milton, that I believe is the largest in Oregon. It is fifty-seven inches around the trunk at the ground. The trunk separates into nine branches, each of which would make a fair-sized tree. The largest limb is thirty-seven inches around. The tree bears very full. I should like to hear from any one who can produce a larger tree."

Grant County News: The Canyon City water-works have been completed, and this town may consider itself as well fitted to fight fire as any other in Oregon. There is pressure sufficient to throw the water over the highest building, and the water is always ready to be turned on at the first alarm. But this should not induce any one to relax his or her vigilance to prevent a fire from starting. With a strong wind and twenty minutes start, all the water-works in Oregon would not put out a fire in this town.

Washington Territory.

Diphtheria has caused the death of a number of children at Centerville, Lewis county. It is still raging.

George Reeser died Monday evening, of consumption, at his home on the Walla Walla river, about five miles below Walla Walla. Deceased was aged about 50 years. He left three grown sons and a daughter, the latter married.

Mrs. Sarah I. Pointer, wife of John I. Pointer, and daughter of Hon. T. G. Lee, died suddenly, of a congestive chill, at her home near Dayton, on the 28th. Deceased was 28 years of age. A husband and three children survive her.

Lonnie Knighton and young Bishop are matched to run a three-heat race, at the Olympia fair ground, on November 3. The contest will be for $500 a side, and the distance is seventy-five yards. Much interest centers on the race.

A few days ago the First National bank of Colfax was organized, with M. S. Burrell president, J. H. Bellinger vice president, and Wm. Lippitt, Wm. L. Powers, J. H. Bellinger and M. S. Burrell directors. The cashier has not yet been selected.

The Puget Mill Company have on the stocks at Port Ludlow the hull of the largest barkentine yet built on the Pacific coast, a vessel of 700,000 feet of lumber carrying capacity. She is all planked, and the men are now planing her off, and in a month or six weeks she will be ready for sea.

Walla Walla Journal: A large cougar was killed on Monday by L. M. LaPointe, on the Walla Walla river, a few miles above town. It measured eight feet from tip to tip and was large in proportion. It had been a holy terror to the natives and the cattle in the vicinity where it was killed for a long time. LaPointe was only fifteen feet from the cougar, which was in the act of springing, when he fired. His gun was loaded for prairie chickens. The shot only stunned the brute, but quickly obtaining an iron bar in the possession of a companion, he finished his work with that instrument, by clubbing it to death.

The new city at the Gray's harbor terminus of the Seattle, Puget Sound and Gray's Harbor railroad, comprises lots 1 and 2 of section 28, township No. 17 north, range 10 west, and the portion at present subdivided covers between fifty and sixty acres, with a frontage along the harbor of half a mile. The blocks are numbered from 1 to 48, and the streets running east and west, parallel with the harbor, are named respectively, Chehalis, York, Owings, Columbia, Pitt; those running north and south at right angles to the shore, Wharf, Bergen, Gray, Ocean, Newell, Elliott, Hanford and Harbor. The lots are 60x130 feet 10 in a block, and the streets vary in width from 60 to 100 feet. Many of the blocks and lots are fractional, owing to the angle of the shore with the lines of the government subdivisions.

THE VOTE OF OHIO.

The following table is presented in order that readers may judge from inspection of it what proportion of the vote of the two parties in Ohio was cast for the prohibition amendment. It will be seen that the vote for prohibition is not much in excess, in any county, of the republican vote; that it falls much short of the republican vote in the counties where the principal cities are situated, and that the democratic counties did very little for it. The table would seem to bear out the inference that about nine-tenths of the vote cast for the amendment was cast by republicans:

EXPLORING ALASKA.

Lieut. Schwatka's Long Journey on a Raft Down the Yukon.

A PERILOUS VOYAGE MADE IN SAFETY

Three Thousand Miles of an Unknown Country Traversed by the Party—Wonders of the Northwestern Possession

NEW YORK, Oct 31.—The Herald gives the following interesting details of Lieutenant Schwatka's Alaska explorations No sooner had General Nelson A. Miles assumed command of the department of the Columbia, in July, 1880, than he began to look forward to a military examination and topographical exploration of Alaska. Rumors had been current for years that this section was rich in mineral wealth, and that its vast forests were unequaled. General Miles therefore sought an appropriation from the last congress but the bill was buried Despite this obstacle, however last spring Lieutenant Schwatka was detailed to make an examination of the country, commencing if possible, at the headquarters of the Yukon and following that stream to its mouth Schwatka left Vancouver in May, with Assistant Surgeon George F Wilson C A Homan topographical assistant, four enlisted men and an interpreter Arriving at Sitka he made his way across to the country of the Chilcat Indians 110 miles distant, where he employed sixty five natives to carry his provisions across the Dehadee (or Kutusk) mountains Among these Indians were two who proved to be of great worth during the trip—Billy Dickinson, who was a good English and Chilcat interpreter and Indianne, who was of great service on the Lower Yukon Some 6600 pounds were packed across the mountains by less than sixty five Indians.

HUMAN PACK MULES

The pass in the mountains was named after the secretary of the French Geological Society, M Perra. "Perra pass" is covered with snow and ice most of the year, and when Schwatka's party went through the trail (if such it could be called) it was one sheet of snow and ice Leaving Chilcat June 7 the party went through this pass, forty miles in length, at a slow pace The whites report that it was almost impossible to retain their footing as they wended their way around the sides of the steep mountains A misstep would have sent the unfortunate one some 800 to 1200 feet in the canyons below but notwithstanding that the whites were so cautious their Indian allies went along with apparent ease—boys not yet 13 years of age carrying sixty five pounds, and adults from 100 to 150 pounds The path was oft times so narrow that the packs on the natives' backs scraped the inner edge of the mountain side clear of snow or left the impression of the box as it scraped along on the ice The Indians, without exception, carried their entire load by a band around the forehead, and never attempted to steady the load or allow its weight to fall upon the shoulders. The whites say it excelled anything in the packing line that ever came under their observation.

HEAD WATERS OF THE YUKON.

After reaching the opposite side of the mountains the attention of the party was attracted to a low gurgling sound as of running water Probing through the snow and ice they found it to be water and what afterward proved to be the head waters of the Yukon. Following the meanderings of the stream (which was less than forty yards wide at that place), the party came to a lake some seven miles long and averaging about one mile in width At this spot most of the natives were dismissed and sent back to their homes, and the remainder of the party set about constructing a raft The timber at this place was not the most tempting for this kind of naval architecture, but a small and staunch raft was constructed on which the party commenced their long and perilous journey The lake (Lake Lindermann named after Dr. Lindermann of the Berlin Geographical Society) safely passed the river took a well defined course for three-fourths of a mile and emptied into a much larger and more beautiful lake, about twenty miles in length and averaging about one mile in width This lake was deprived of its unpronounceable Indian name and put down on the chart as Lake Bennett, named in honor of the proprietor of the Herald The explorers say it is one of the finest lakes they ever beheld About midway of this lake on the western side a river of more than ordinary pretensions flows into it There being no civilized name attached to it and it being one of the greatest tributaries of the Yukon it was put down on the chart as Flynn river in honor of a New York journalist While on Lake Bennett the raft was driven ashore by a high wind Here more desirable timber was found, and a large raft sixty feet by eighteen feet was built with three large logs as the base of the structure lengthwise In this new raft the journey was continued

DANGEROUS RAPIDS

Passing out of the north end of Lake Bennett a series of small lakes and chutes were encountered for several miles, when suddenly the raft shot into a lake some forty miles in length and about ten in width This was called Lake Marsh, after Professor Marsh of the Smithsonian Institution The course all this time had been northeasterly varying of course, with the meanderings of the lakes or river Passing through lake Marsh the Yukon again assumes its proportions as a river for six miles when Lake Tah Co was encountered This lake is about thirty miles in length and about five in width After leaving this lake the river was uninterrupted for the navigation of the raft for forty miles when a canyon, or gorge in the mountains seemed to forbid the party from proceeding further

The river narrowed down at the upper end of the gorge, and all that the explorers could see in the chasm was a mass of frothy soapy looking water being dashed hither and thither in its swift descent only to be caught up again and thrown high against the sides of an almost perpendicular wall A log was detached from the raft and sent through as a pilot or avant courier, and as the party watched it tumbling and pitching against the rocks on either hand now hidden beneath the foam and then thumping and bumping itself against the sides of the canyon, it made them think twice before risking their craft to such unpropitious elements The canyon was four miles in length, and the provisions were taken from the raft and a portage made But once on the other side with no raft or timber to build a new one, it was concluded that the party might as well have no provisions. Finally Schwatka and a party shoved the raft from its moorings and were soon in the seething torrent The raft was well braced and that no doubt led to its successful passage, for it was not the seamanship or its management that prevented it from being ground into kindling wood After gathering the provisions together and resting, another start was made, and the Yukon for fifty miles further down offered no serious obstruction, though an occasional sandbar or shooting rapid gave the party enough to do to make them relish the exciting incidents of the trip A passage of ninety-four miles from Lake Tah Co brought the explorer into another large lake, which the natives call Lake Labrash, and which is about thirty five miles long and averaging four in width This was the last of the great lakes, and from here on to the mouth of the Yukon the river would at times assume the proportions of a respectable river, then spread out into marshes and lagoons, and again confine itself to some narrow passages through mountains or hills

THE FISH AND GAME

Strange as it may seem there was but one kind of fish to be caught in all these lakes or the rivers or creeks emptying therein The mountaineer can hardly realize that no trout or salmon trout or the white lake fish of this extreme northwestern coast was to be found in these waters The grayling was the only fish caught by the party up to this time and the reputed elk and moose-ox were nowhere to be seen. In fact this portion of the country seemed devoid of all animated life, except an occasional grouse or pheasant. He who has read Baron Von Wrangel's expedition of 1823 24 will remember the thrilling descriptions given of huge elk being driven by natives into pens and there slaughtered by the hundreds in the fall of the year to supply the natives with their winter food The fisherman had in his mind's eye conceived it to be a paradise, where mountain trout would swim ashore and fasten themselves on his hook and the dreaded worm so often used for bait would be dispensed with The miner had believed it to be a region abounding in precious metals and was loth to give up the ghost until he had heard from this unknown region But this party found none of the poetry depicted in the imagination of the above classes Government prevender and plenty of manual labor was the regular routine of the day. The party proceeded some 630 miles from the last-named lake before reaching Fort Selkirk, having traveled over 800 miles on their raft From Fort Selkirk to Fort Reliance is about 400 miles further and from Reliance to Fort Yukon about 300 miles.

COME FROM ABOVE

At Fort Yukon the party met the steamer of the Alaska Fur Company on her trip up the river for the last load of furs of the season. It was near this place that the raft one day shot out from a canyon and came near being wrecked upon the beach where a miner stood at work. Amazed at the strange apparition, he cried out, "Good God! where did you come from?"

"From above," sang out some one on the raft and the miner inadvertently turned his eyes toward heaven to see if there was going to be a shower of rafts and explorers From Fort Yukon the party proceeded on down the river on their raft to old Fort Adams having made a journey of over eight en hundred miles by raft—at times through a wild and unexplored country, shooting through canyons and wading waist deep to shove their raft over sandbars taking observations and noting the topography of the country, in case the government is ever interested sufficiently to send an expedition thither to find out its true resources and wealth

At old Fort Adams the party bade farewell to the raft that had carried them safely thus far and chartered a schooner to take them to the mouth of the Yukon, hoping they might sight a passing whaler and thus return to civilization before winter set in Leaving Chilcat on the 7th of June, the party reached Fort Selkirk July 15, and the mouth of the Yukon river August 27, and arrived at St Michael's on the 30th of the same month. They were delayed here for thirteen days when, providentially the Leo came in with Lieutenant Ray's party on board Picking the explorers up, they made Ounalaska in five days, and after waiting seven days at that point, again steamed out of port and arrived here the 6th inst.

Lieutenant Schwatka now claims to have made the longest raft journey on record and has traced the Yukon river for 3000 miles from its mouth 1500 of which he considers navigable should the country ever demand any great amount of shipping thereon

The woman's suffrage bill may come up to morrow

It was expected that the bill for the division of Spokane county would have come up to-day but somehow it was not reached

The governor has extended the date of execution of the murderer Ormiric Giomiani to December 1 at the request of the Swiss authorities as it seems that insanity prevails in the man's family and his case will probably be investigated by a medical commission

THE WOMAN SUFFRAGE BILL

An Attempt on the Part of the Opponents of the Bill to Kill It with a Substitute

OLYMPIA Oct 30

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

The opponents of woman suffrage at the Washington capital, having learned by the overwhelming evidence of events that their minority is a hopeless one, have now resorted to a measure that will unless nipped in the bud destroy for the time being the progress so grandly made thus far These usurpers of the rights of our mothers attempt no open fight, but seek by efforts seemingly plausible to deceive the very elect The bill granting the right of suffrage to women having triumphantly passed the house, was referred in the council to the committee on elections, who have resolutely smothered it during the past week—the friends and foes of the measure being so equally divided that one side is feared to trust the other Mr Power a staunch friend of the bill and member of the committee has been sick for several days but will be able to occupy his seat to morrow The opponents of the bill hoping to defeat honest legislation through a style of political "bushwhacking" which cannot deceive any wide awake woman, offered to-day a substitute which reads as follows

Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Washington

SECTION 1 That the right of citizens of the United States to vote in this territory shall not be denied on account of sex

SEC 2 All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed

SEC 3 This act shall take effect and be in force from and after the proclamation by the governor that the same has been approved by the electors of this territory as hereinafter provided

SEC 4 That for the purpose of submitting this act to the electors for their approval or disapproval there shall be at the next general election for territorial officers a separate ballot box at each polling place where each elector, as provided in section one of this act may deposit one vote either for suffrage act or against suffrage act which shall be canvassed as other votes for territorial officers and if the number of votes cast for suffrage act exceed the number of votes cast against suffrage act the governor shall issue his proclamation but this act has been approved by the electors of this territory

Observe how hard the men's rights doctrine dies Also observe that the supreme courts of several states and territories have from time to time decided that a legislature has no power to delegate its legitimate responsibilities back to the people

Observe that supreme courts have sometimes decided that women are not citizens of the United States, and then see how dangerous is this style of legislation It will, if it becomes a law, give rise to litigation and no end of trouble The council knows that women wish the ballot Should it succeed in palming off this offspring of bigotry and intolerance as a substitute for the frank and honest proposition sent to it by the house for its acceptance the ratification jubilee for which the ladies are preparing will be changed into an indignation meeting whose power will be felt at the homes of the men who would so misrepresent their constituents as to palm off upon them a spurious compact in lieu of the legislation which they had a right to expect from those who claim to respect the wishes of their constituents and yet repudiate their dearest interests

But this bill is not yet a law nor is there any reasonable prospect that it will become a law The friends of the original bill are organized and in earnest and they mean to fight it out on that line if it takes all winter.

The women have gotten over their panic and are going to work in earnest They have learned at last that it is their enemies and not their friends who command them to keep away from the capitol They are learning anew that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, and so they will watch with all due diligence the doings of the council from this time henceforth They are proud of their friends in the council and proud of the governor who eagerly awaits the opportunity to affix his signature to an act that will very nearly double the voting population of Washington and much more than double its moral strength

CHARACTER IN SMOKING

Watch His Cigar and You May Judge of a Man's Character.

It's twenty years said a Chicago dealer since I began to sell tobacco, and in that time I have closely studied the characters of my patrons forming my conclusions from the kind of company they keep I mean by the kind of cigars they smoke I can always tell An even tempered quiet fellow never goes to an extreme in choosing a tobacco a nervous man wants something strong and furious a mild man something that smokes and nothing more. Then there is a great deal in the way men handle their cigars If a man smokes his cigar only enough to keep it lighted and relishes taking it from between his lips to cast a whirling curl of blue smoke into the air set him down as an easy going fellow who cares little for how the world goes, and no more for himself He has keen perceptions and delicate sensibilities He will not create trouble but is apt to see it out when it is once begun Beware of the man who never releases the cigar from the grip of his teeth and is indifferent whether it lives or dies He is cool calculating and exacting He is seldom energetic physically but lives easily off of those who perform the labor

A man who smokes a bit rests a bit and fumbles the cigar more or less is apt to be easily affected by circumstances He may be energetic careful generous and courageous but he is vacillating and liable to change on a moment's notice If the cigar goes out frequently the man has a whole souled disposition is a devil may care sort of a fellow with a lively brain and a glib tongue, and generally a fine fund of anecdotes and yarns To hold half of of the cigar in the mouth and smoke indifferently is a lazy man's habit. They are generally of little force and their characters are not of the highest strata

A nervous man, or one under exciting influences fumbles his cigar a great deal. He is kind of popular men Holding the cigar constantly between his teeth chewing it occasionally and not caring whether or not it has been lighted at all are characteristics of men with the tenacity of bulldogs They never forget anything and never release a hold The fop stands his cigar on end and an experienced smoker either points it straight ahead or almost at right angles with his course

ASHBURNHAM Mass, Jan 14 1880

I have been very sick over two years They all gave me up as past cure I tried the most skillful physicians but they did not reach the worst part The lungs and heart would fill up every night and distress me and my throat was very bad. I told my children I never should die in peace until I had tried Hop Bitters I have taken two bottles. They have helped me very much indeed I am now well. There was a lot of sick folks here who have seen how they helped me and they used them and are cured and feel as thankful as I do that there is so valuable a medicine made

DID SHE DIE?

No!

She lingered and suffered along pining away all the time for years,

The doctors doing her no good

And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about

Indeed! Indeed!

How thankful we should be for that medicine

A DAUGHTER'S MISERY

Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery

From a complication of kidney liver rheumatic trouble and nervous debility

Under the care of the best physicians

Who gave her disease various names

But no relief

And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters that we had shunned for years before using it. —THE PARENTS

FATHER IS GETTING WELL.

My daughters say—

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters

He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable

And we are so glad that he used your bitters.

SWIFT'S SPECIFIC

Beware of the continued use of mercury and potash for the treatment of Blood and Skin diseases—they never cure and nearly always injure or totally ruin the general health

A WELL KNOWN DRUGGIST

My drug store was the first to sell Swift's Specific It was then put up in quart bottles, which sold for $5 each I have seen a great many cases cured by its use and some who had tried all sorts of treatment. In fact I have never known it to fail when taken properly. I sell a large quantity of it and for all diseases that are dependent on blood poison or skin humor it cures

Pimples or Blotches on the Skin.

And makes the complexion fair and rosy As for blood taint—there is no such word as fail It cures cases that have long withstood other sorts of treatment and with it any of those recurring troubles that generally follow in ruinful and other so-called cures.

T J MASSENBURG Macon Ga.

DRY TETTER.

For years I was afflicted with Dry Tetter of the most obstinate type Was treated by many of the best physicians took quantities of mercury potash and arsenic which instead of curing the tetter crippled me up with mineral poison and rheumatism. The tetter continued to grow worse and the itching almost made me crazy In this condition I was induced to take Swift's Specific and the result was as astonishing as it was gratifying In a few months the tetter was entirely well, the mercurial poisoning all out of my system and I was a well man—and due only to Swift's Specific All like sufferers should take it

WHAT A PHYSICIAN SAYS.

CYPRESS RIDGE, MONROE Co. ARK.

July 23 1883

I have a bright little daughter who will be two years of next month She has been troubled nearly ever since her birth with a skin disease, which I first diagnosed chicken pox but later found it to be some sort of eczema at any rate it resisted very stubbornly all the different treatments. I procured one bottle of Swift's Specific and gave it to her in small doses three times a day and in a short while had the satisfaction to see that she was entirely well I am so well pleased with its effects on her that I shall not only use it in my practice but I shall administer it to my other children and take it myself.
